

Weather

Patchy morning fog will give way to fair skies today and tomorrow as light winds tease the valley. Highs will range in the 70's and 80's, with evening lows in the upper 30's and mid-40's. Livermore recorded temperatures of 76 and 38 Monday.

Philcox says he has votes

Redevelopment plan may be headed for ballot

PLEASANTON — This city's first redevelopment plan appears headed for the ballot. Councilman Robert Philcox late Monday said "I have the necessary votes" to get the city council to place the redevelopment venture on the March ballot.

Always one of the options held by the council, which also serves as the Redevelopment Agency for the city, a city-wide election would replace any unilateral action by the council in creating the $4.5 million first phase of that project.

"There is too much merit in this plan, and too much work has already gone into it, to see the whole thing jeopardized because of the initial reaction of a small percentage of our citizens," Philcox said. He was referring to the 800-plus post card "ballots" returned by those who say they favor the stand by CARD (Citizens Against Redevelopment) and that would call for killing the entire program.

"More of our people have the right to know all the facts, all the benefits we propose, before the council reacts in any way to this program," Philcox told The Times. "Just that Las Positas interchange alone would bring tremendous benefits to a large area of the city, including school bus transport, fire protection, and a lot of sales tax dollars returned to the city."

Almost a year of debate over the redevelopment venture has centered largely within the city's core area, with the Chamber of Commerce backing a scaled-down version, and home owners in the older residential areas on the fringe of the downtown area leading off the attack on that proposal.

The plan, as now submitted, eliminates most of those residential areas, reduces the scope of the plan and softens also the power of the redevelopment agency. It was that plan which finally won strong support from the Chamber of Commerce, but still failed to convince CARD's membership, which now says no redevelopment program of any kind should be attempted.

The council was expected to talk informally about Philcox's ballot proposal late Monday night, but any formal action would have to wait until Monday, Nov. 10, when the council meets as the Pleasanton Redevelopment Agency to review the plan as finally submitted, and to then act on that document.

Voters at polls today

Five vie for three VCSD seats

Today is Election Day. Dublin-San Ramon voters will elect three members to the Valley Community Services District (VCSD) Board of Directors.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The candidates are M. Bruce Dillashaw, Richard H. Fahey, Ann Jolley, L. C. "Chuck" Ladner, and Kathie Watson.

Dillashaw, business agent for the Cement Mason's Union, is an 11-year resident of San Ramon. This is his first campaign for elective public office.

Fahey, 49, is a salesman for Diablo Pump and Equipment Co. in Martinez. A 12-year resident of San Ramon, Fahey is seeking his third term on the board.

Jolley, also a two-term incumbent, is a San Ramon homemaker. She has lived in the Dublin-San Ramon area for 13 years.

Ladner, 58, was named to the board last year to fill a vacancy. He is retired from Chevrolet Division of General Motors, and now works part-time as a truck sales manager. He is an 11-year Dublin resident.

Watson, 30, is a homemaker and mother of two. She is founder and president of Silvergate Homeowners Association and a 5-year Dublin resident.

VCSD General Offices in Dublin will serve as headquarters for Alameda and Contra Costa County Elections Departments for the semi-official election returns by voting precinct officers. There are 4,089 Dublin residents eligible to vote.

Dublin polling places are: Precinct 1: Nielsen School, 7500 Amarillo Rd., Dublin.

Precinct 2: Dublin School, 7997 Vomac Rd., Dublin.

Precinct 3: Fallon School, 7425 Larkdale Rd., Dublin.

Precinct 4: Wells Intermediate School, 6800 Penn Dr., Dublin.

There are 3,628 South San Ramon residents eligible to vote.

South San Ramon polling places are: Precinct 168: 9843 Broadmoor Dr., San Ramon.

Precinct 169: 101 Montclair Pl., San Ramon.

Precinct 170: 100 Mills Pl., San Ramon.

Precinct 171: 7532 Interlachen Ave., San Ramon.

Precinct 172: 9000 Craydon Circle, San Ramon (Sunny Glen Recreation Center).

For the first time, the order in which candidates' names appear on the ballot has been determined by a random drawing by the Alameda County registrar of voters.

Previously, incumbents has been listed first, followed by challengers in alphabetical order.

The California Supreme Court last year struck down as unconstitutional the law which authorized preferential listing for incumbents. It also declared unconstitutional the practice of listing candidates in alphabetical order.

Vote due for redevelopment speak to the issue, but I don't think anyone should be elected on one issue," said Philcox.

Philcox, who is not up for reelection next March, was asked what would happen if a pro-redevelopment council majority were chosen by voters who also reject redevelopment.

"I can only speak for myself. I will abide by the voters' decision," said Philcox. "My feeling is if redevelopment won't pass on a referendum, it won't pass on the city council."

Members of Citizens Against Re-Development (CARD) in the audience last night applauded the agency's decision to go to the ballot.

CARD's presence prompted redevelopment directors Joyce LeClaire and Roger McLain to apologize to CARD for remarks at a redevelopment agency meeting last week.

McLain and LeClaire attacked CARD for making "distorted statements" about redevelopment on a CARD flyer that was mailed to the community recently.

McLain apologized because the agency had not allowed

CARD members to speak in the group's defense during the meeting last week.

In her apology LeClaire said she had felt frustrated over attacks by CARD in the press to which she did not have the opportunity to respond.

Rape try reported in arroyo

LIVERMORE — A 14-year-old Granada High School student was grabbed and dragged into Arroyo Creek bed in an apparent rape attempt Friday as she was walking home from school.

The ski-masked suspect ripped the girl's blouse and exposed himself before fleeing towards the Granada High playing field, police said. He threatened the girl saying he had a knife, but she said she saw none.

Radioactive cargo alarms city

An incident involving the shipping of vitamin tablets on a truck which carried radioactive materials last week in Livermore has worried some citizens, but they should relax a government official said yesterday.

The incident occurred last Tuesday when Wally Depew, proprietor of Van's Health Food Store in Livermore, discovered that a shipment of vitamins was delivered on a Consolidated Freightways truck containing radioactive materials.

There was no danger of contamination to the vitamins because the radioactive materials were tightly sealed, a spokesperson for Consolidated Freightways said last week.

But Depew was not satisfied. He phoned his vitamin supplier in Portland, Oregon, and the supplier agreed to take back the controversial shipment, destroy it, and replace it with a fresh supply, shipped by a carrier to be designated by Depew.

Depew is happy about the action of his vitamin supplier, but he thinks the incident raises a larger issue about which he definitely is not happy. He thinks the "carelessness" in shipping the radioactive materials could have had repercussions for the public. There is no guarantee that the shipment was not hazardous to the vitamins and the truck driver left the back of the truck open on although the truck was clearly marked "radioactive materials". That procedure could invite the kind of nuclear materials hijacking which the government says won't happen because of "tight government security regulations", Depew said.

Law does not prohibit mixing shipments of vitamins or other foodstuffs and radioactive materials on the same truck, said Dan Mulcahey of the United States Department of Transportation office in San Francisco. These radioactive materials are low-level radiation materials and don't pose the threat which high-level radiation matter would, said Mulcahey.

Trucks carry signs proclaiming "radioactive materials" not as a warning that the public should keep a big distance from the trucks but to notify firemen about the contents of the truck so they know how to treat a truck fire if one should break out, said Mulcahey.

The Department of Transportation does spot checks on trucks to see if truck lines are adhering to packaging and other safety requirements, said Mulcahey. In the seven years Mulcahey has been an inspector, he has never found a dangerous safety violation involving the radioactive cargo.

Since radioactivity is invisible, we asked Mulcahey whether he used a geiger counter to check the shipments.

"We don't do it. The shipper should use a geiger counter," said Mulcahey. The burden of checking for radioactivity is on the shipper, he said.

The Department of Transportation has never thought about acquiring one, he added.

"We thought about getting a roentgen counter (which measures radioactivity on skin, clothing, etc.), but we were told by safety experts that the radiation danger is so low, we don't need one."

Livermore's sphere may include Las Positas Valley

Alameda County Bureau
OAKLAND — The Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) "reconsideration" of its proposed sphere of influence for the City of Livermore may appease city officials, but it will also provoke the ire of nearly 100 secessionists.

In its staff report and Draft Environmental Impact Report issued Friday, LAFCO lists four options open to the commission in reconsidering the city's sphere.

Two of those options — reducing the sphere to the present city boundary as demanding by the secessionists and expanding the sphere north to the Contra Costa County line — are dismissed out-of-hand by the staff.

The report considers retention of the current sphere or expanding the city's sphere to a 1973 LAFCO staff recommendation as the only "viable" alternatives.

Nearly 100 residents outside the city's limits but within its sphere of influence petitioned the commission for removal from Livermore's influence.

They charged the city has been unable to expand services within its own city limits and cannot therefore be expected to take care of the "fringe" area.

The city, meanwhile, filed suit against the county demanding expansion of the sphere to include the hotly contested Las Positas Valley.

Livermore's ire was raised earlier when Alameda County Supervisors amended the county's general plan to allow development of Harlan Geldermann's proposed New Town.

At stake are nearly 150,000 acres in the east end of the valley.

The city's present limits encompass some 7,000 acres, while the maximum proposed sphere would be 156,000.

Livermore city officials were reluctant to comment on the report which had not yet arrived at their offices.

Planning director George Musso said he thought the city's leaders would be pleased if commissioners reverted to their original 1973 boundaries and extended the northern edge of the sphere to Hartford Avenue and Hartman Road.

City attorney Robert Logan told The Times he would feel "very inclined toward" dropping pending litigation over the county's earlier sphere limits.

"That's assuming the city council goes along with it," he added.

LAFCO's staff has rejected limiting the sphere to the city's present boundaries because "then the areas surrounding the city would be in no sphere of influence, and, therefore, there should be no development."

It quotes policies of the agency as setting "zones or spheres of influence for unincorporated preserves for specified reasons, such as to preserve the agricultural or open space or areas for future incorporation."

It refers to areas theoretically cut from the present sphere as governmental "no man's land with no one responsible for the provision of services."

"Unless a viable option for provision of governmental services is provided for this 'fringe area,' the Commission should not consider deleting it from the sphere of influence for the City of Livermore."

The city earlier proposed extension of the northern boundary north to the county's line with Contra Costa County.

The Alameda County LAFCO, however, deliberately has rejected the concept of "wall-to-wall" cities, claiming "the sphere of influence for a city would be only that which could reasonably be served within the foreseeable future."

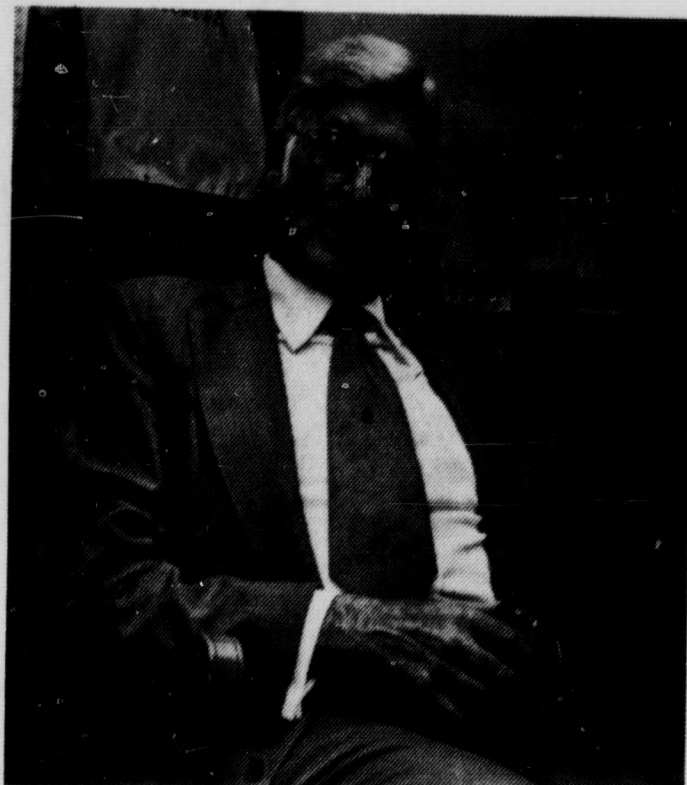

The sphere should be based upon the existing land use plans of the cities and the county and any area labeled as open space or agricultural preserve generally is excluded from a sphere of influence.

The LAFCO staff originally had recommended a sphere of influence to include the Las Positas Valley, but the full commission rejected the 156,000 acre spread.

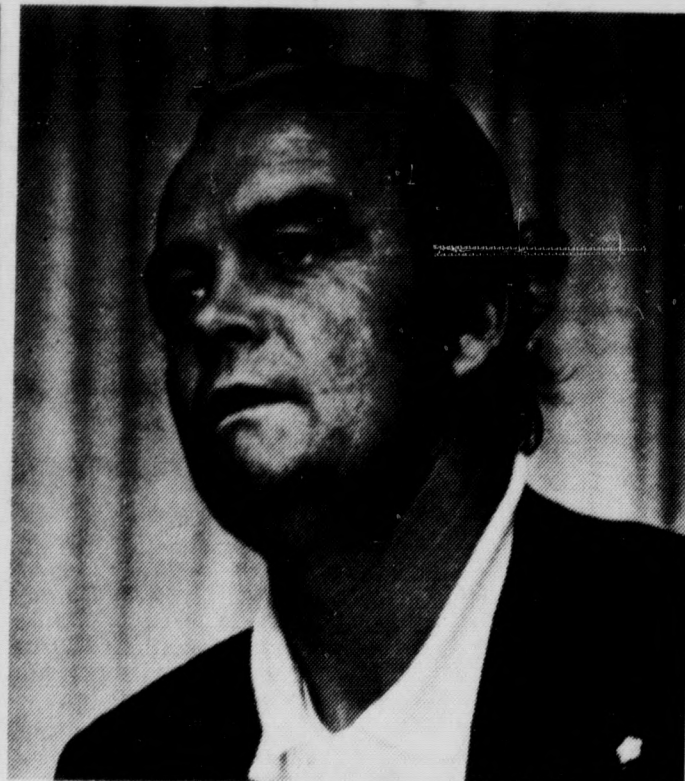

Staff points to the board of supervisors amendment to the county general plan to permit development of a new community in the Las Positas Valley and the commission's reception of a proposal for creation of a county service area to provide services for the proposed development as arguments against continuation of the old sphere.

Livermore planners

Eagles to ask expansion

LIVERMORE — A request by the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Livermore Aerie 609, to construct a storage room adjacent to its meeting hall at 527 N. Livermore Ave. and plans for six single family residences on the southeast corner of Wall Street and Stanley Boulevard will be heard during a public hearing to be held by the planning commission tonight.

Commissioners will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Court Chambers, 39 S. Livermore Ave. The public hearings begin at 8 p.m.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles has requested a conditional use permit to construct a one-story, 640-square-foot storage room and the planning staff recommends approval, subject to the installation of numerous public works improvements.

"The subject site has been developed generally over the years," the staff report notes. "Improvements have been made but to this date the site still lacks public works improvements along Linden Street and paved off-street parking."

"Since 1960, the zoning ordinance has required that paved parking be provided for the subject use based upon the size of the main assembly hall at a rate of one space for each 50 square feet of floor area."

"Approval of the subject permit requires paving of the parking lot, but a delay in implementation can be considered, to reduce the financial impact to the lodge," the report concludes.

Other improvement requirements recommended by the staff in addition to paved off-street parking include a fence along the west property line; trees for both the parking lot and site; additional landscaping; sprinkler system, and curbs, gutter, sidewalk and street surface constructed to city standards.

The Wall Street-Stanley Boulevard site application includes three variance requests: construction of six single family residences in conformance with the previous zoning rather than the current zoning; reduced street frontage setbacks, and reduced setbacks from a major street.

The planning staff recommends the development be allowed to proceed according to the previous zoning regulations; street frontage yards for two of the lots only be reduced from 20 to 15 feet, and one lot only have its setback from Stanley Boulevard reduced from 35 to 15 feet.

In other business scheduled for tonight, commissioners will consider a request by Christopher and Patricia Gattousis to construct a fence on their corner lot at 5179 Diane Lane (at Diane Court) starting from the sidewalk, rather than at the required 10-foot setback.

"In effect, to approve the requested variance would be tantamount to ultimately amending the ordinance to allow setback reduction for the entire community," noted the staff in a report recommending the request be denied.

Matters referred from Alameda County also will be reviewed by commissioners. These are requests to:

Approve as a building site a parcel reduced from 100 acres to 41,125 square feet at 788 Laughlin Road; permit continued use of a non-conforming free-standing sign at 1815 Portola Avenue, and permit retention of three non-conforming roof-mounted signs beyond the amortization period at 5753 Southfront Road.

Foothill's band to lead parade

PLEASANTON — Foothill High's multi-award winning band will lead the parade of bands scheduled this Saturday morning along Main Street.

The march will feature all 28 high school marching bands entered in the "Americana '76" band review, being hosted by the Foothill High School Band Boosters.

Foothill will lead the more than 2,000 prep bandmen, stepping off at 11 a.m. from Amador Valley High School and marching down Santa Main, Rose to the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

Coming in order after the Falcons, directed by Bob Moorefield and lead by drum major Dan Bowe, will be Prospect (Saratoga), Half Moon Bay, Willits, Capuchino (San Bruno), John Swett (Crockett), St. Mary's (Berkeley), San Leandro, Dublin, Tracy, Modesto, Miramonte (Orinda), Silver Creek (San Jose), Crestmoor (Daly City), Highlands (Sacramento), John F. Kennedy (Fremont), Thomas Downey (Modesto), Live Oak (Morgan Hill), Los Altos, Armijo (Fairfield), Livermore, Lodi, Piedmont Hills (San Jose), Glendora (San Gabriel Valley in southern California), Granada, Clovis and Sunnyvale.

Bands will step off from Amador Valley High at four-minute intervals, the last band (Sunnyvale) leaving the staging area at 12:48.

Eighteen of the bands have been selected to put on seven-to-nine minute halftime shows Saturday evening at Amador Valley's Patterson Field. The program begins at 6:30 p.m.

Bands participating and their class are as follows: Piedmont Hills, Hills, Clovis, Watsonville, Sunnyvale and Glendora, Class A; Armijo, Live Oak, Downey, Los Altos, and Granada, Class B; Modesto, Prospect, Capuchino, John Swett, Highlands and Silver Creek, Class C.

At an awards ceremony at about 10:45 p.m. Saturday, first, second and third awards will be given pageant winners. As in all band competition, the Sweepstakes award is the prime trophy awarded the best overall band. Announcer will be Jack Kendall.

Refreshments will be available for use by the estimated 2,000 participants. Refreshments will be available during the pageant. Admission for the evening performance is $1.50 for adults and $1 for students.

Chairman of the halftime pageant is Jim Bowe, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Fugel, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Finsterbusch, Mrs. G. Gooch and J. Allman.

Valley obituary

Helen Rego

Helen T. Rego, a native and lifetime resident of Livermore, died Sunday in a local hospital. She was 65.

Mrs. Rego was a member of the Livermore Druids Circle, Pocomantas Council of Livermore, the Livermore Companions of Foresters, and the Las Positas parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West.

She is survived by four sons, Don of Santa Cruz, Rich, James, and William, all of Livermore, one daughter, Janice Vander Beek of Livermore, two brothers, Clarence Wright of Livermore and Harold Wright of Beaver Creek, Oregon, and a sister, Fern Silva of Hayward. She also leaves eight grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the Chapel of Callaghan Mortuary, 3833 East Ave. in Livermore with the Rev. William Nebo officiating. Interment will follow at Roselawn Cemetery in Livermore.

The family prefers donations to the American Cancer Society or a favorite charity in lieu of flowers.

Dublin High School band will participate in "Americana '76" this Saturday in Pleasanton.

Joy of singing

CURTIS SCHOOL OF MUSIC in Livermore is starting a new music program in addition to private piano, organ, voice, guitar, and other instrument lessons. It's called The Joy of Singing. The first group of children, who are learning musicianship through singing, has been formed and meets every Saturday from 9 to 10 a.m. Teachers are Don and Judy Curtis and Terry Zane, music teacher in the San Joaquin School District. Mr. Zane is trained in the unique Kodaly Method. Seen above are enthusiastic members of the first group. Visitors are welcome and sign-ups for new groups are now being taken.

Theresa Grape sang out 'Love's Old Sweet Song' for Senior Californians of Dublin-San Ramon at a luncheon held at the Shannon Community Center recently. She was accompanied by Fred Stermerick, chairman of the event which featured Oriental food, and Paul McCann, Bill Lodge on the musical saw, and Dorothy Harder.

Quake sounds, glass blowing featured at Cal State Expo

The sounds of an earthquake and the sight of scientific glass blowing will be just a few of the things to experience at California State University, Hayward's annual Science Expo, Sunday, Nov. 16 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Community entries to the Science Expo will include a demonstration of the latest equipment used in heart research by the Alameda County Heart Association.

Vaccine program for seniors

Alameda County residents 60 years of age and older may take advantage of a county-wide flu vaccine program throughout November.

Only one injection is required. It offers protection against the Hong Kong, Port Chalmers and Scotland virus strains for one year.

For further information call the toll-free number of the Office on Aging Older Adults, Enterprise 1-7451.

Admission is free to the on-campus event.

Science Expo will feature numerous displays, movies and demonstrations by the University's faculty and students and Bay Area industries and research centers. Departmental contributions will vary from demonstrations of the use of the electron microscope and optical lasers to exhibits of nylon formation and mathematical patterns. Psychological phenomena such as visual and auditory perception will be explored and there will be games for people to play with a computer.

More than half LLL employees call Livermore their home

More than half of Lawrence Livermore Laboratory's 5695 employees reside in the town of Livermore. This percentage (56.3) represents an increase of 0.1 from last year's figures. Pleasanton is the home of the second largest group of LLL employees, though only 7 per cent of the lab's population lives there.

These statistics were recently released by Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in its annual survey on employee residence. Overall, these figures differ by less than one percentage point from those published in November, 1974.

Ranked by general geographic area, Livermore, Pleasanton, and Brentwood are the home towns of 64.2 per cent of the employees, an increase of 0.3 percent from 1974.

The second largest group of LLL employees lives in the Castro Valley, Hayward, San Lorenzo, and San Leandro area. This area shows the greatest increase, a gain of 1.1 per cent from last year.

Only 5.7 per cent of all lab employees live in the Danville, Dublin, Alamo, and San Ramon area, a decrease of 0.1 percent from 1974.

Nearly 5 per cent (4.9) of the lab employees commute from areas as far away as Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, Albany, El Cerrito, Richmond, and Piedmont. This is a 0.8 decrease from last year.

Another area posting a 0.8 decrease was Fremont, Union City, and San Jose. This area accounts for 3.4 per cent of the employee residence breakdown.

The total population of the laboratory has increased from 5659 in November 1974 to 5695 in November 1975.

Woman of the Year contest

Five finalists are all 'winners'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Lifestyle salutes the five finalists in the Pleasanton Jaycee Wives Club's search for the 1975 Woman of the Year. The candidate selected as Woman of the Year, as well as the finalists, will be honored at a banquet Nov. 15 at the Pleasanton Hotel.

Dagmar Fulton

Member of a pioneer family and involved in every aspect of the valley's history, Dagmar Fulton, has been described as "woman of the times" and "woman of the decade so it seems appropriate that she be considered now as "woman of the year."

Born in Oakland, but raised in Pleasanton, she has been instrumental in the preservation of valley history through her years of working with the Amador Livermore Valley Historical Society.

Her father once mayor of Pleasanton and a brother a city councilman, she was involved with politics at a very early age. One of her most active periods was when she was executive secretary for the Farm Bureau, a position she held for nine years without pay.

Currently a member of the state and county Republican central committee, she feels that during this Bicentennial year "it is a good time for us to look at our Constitution more closely and examine our individual property rights." She is very concerned with "overregulation with too many regulating agencies."

She is currently heading the board of the Valley Memorial Hospital board of directors which she has served for fourteen years.

Judy Hanhy

As mother of four children ranging in age from five to eleven, Judy Hanhy is most vitally interested in school affairs. She has held almost every post in the Walnut Grove and Harvest Park parent groups.

But this young mother has not limited her activities to school affairs. She has served as chairman of the political campaigns for Moretti, Puccio, Stark and served for the Bob Kennedy and McGovern presidential campaigns.

Every philanthropic drive (cancer society, heart-fund, polio research, multiple sclerosis) in the community has been under her chairmanship, and Judy is currently chairman of the Pleasanton Bicentennial Ball.

Judy has diversified her many activities and proven she's not afraid to handle any type of challenge.

Betty Hartley

A woman that says that she "has never earned money in her life; not even to babysit for money," has contributed a wealth of time and executive know-how to a community so much richer for her having lived here. That woman is Betty Hartley, currently president of the Alameda District for Junior Women's Clubs and first vice-president of Harvest Park Home and School Club.

ment to do their part in helping others. They are both in soccer and her oldest is also musically oriented.

She admits her family sometimes does suffer by her heavy volunteer schedules, but her satisfaction comes from comments from her daughter who said, "It's really nice to know that you care about other people."

Mary Powell

As one of her friends said in describing Mary Powell, she is a "giving" person. "She gives of herself and time without qualification."

While talking to her daughter Cathleen, 14, one senses the pride for her mother as a person. "She does everything with us," sums it up.

Coach for her younger daughter Shannon's soccer team, she is furthering her aim first born when she spearheaded the organization of the Pleasanton Girls' Soccer Association which in five years has grown from 50 girls to 900 girls.

She hunts pheasant with her family, handling her own shotgun; takes riding lessons because her daughters and son, Shawn, 13, wanted a horse and wants to share the experience with them.

Because of her vital interest as conversation chairman with the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club, an unsightly weed-covered lot between Harvest Park and Walnut Grove Schools is now a site for a Bicentennial Outdoor Class.

This is Mary Powell, who received a belated teaching credential in 1969 with her three children and husband proudly looking on.

Charlotte Severin

It's hard to say what not to say about Charlotte Severin because there is so much to say.

A graduate nurse with many years of nursing experience and a substitute nurse in the local school districts, she is also an accomplished local artist. Holding active memberships in the Pleasanton Art League and Livermore Art Association, she is also in her second year as president of the Pleasanton Cultural Arts Council through which she has been instrumental in making the long dreamed of a cultural arts center a reality in Pleasanton.

In nominating her, the local branch of the American Association of University Women, described her as a person who "continues to give of herself; she is always ready to help." "Her energy is boundless," they continue.

Her list of activities and contributions are innumerable, but according to the AAUW, it does not do justice to Charlotte's immense contribution to the community.

The Community Bicentennial Band, founded by Charlotte, will herald her good will long after the celebrations are over.

Great Books Group opens fifth year

By LILLY AULT

"The books we read and discuss are great books written by great minds, in great style, conveying great ideas," summed up the reason why Darlyne Setterlund is so enthusiastic about being a member of the Great Books Group.

Carolyn Graham joined the friendly group "to become better acquainted with great literature that I otherwise wouldn't read." She further stated, "It has also encouraged further reading of the selected authors, and gives me an opportunity to be with a group of people that knows the art of listening as well as expressing themselves."

Beginning its fifth year in the Valley, the group meets the first Tuesday of the month at 7:30 p.m. at Homestead Savings and Loan in Dublin.

"We try to limit our discussion to two hours," said Jan Beernsten, one of the originals of the group, "but sometimes it's difficult to turn us off we get so involved."

Membership includes men and women with the group since the first year. Members come from Livermore, Dublin, San Ramon, Danville, Walnut Creek and Lafayette. The group does not limit their gatherings to "discussing" great books, they also have social events.

Books discussed by the group are recommended by the Great Books Foundation and include the best that has been written in fiction, philosophy, history, science, philosophy and religion.

Women Voters

The League of Women Voters is planning a Bay Area seminar Wednesday, Nov. 5 at the Livermore Library.

Guest speaker will be Sara Connor, vice-president of the Bay Area League whose specialty is transportation.

Discussions from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. will center around league positions on regional government and planning, transportation, land use, and regional housing and growth.

The meeting is open to the public. For more information contact call 455-0800.

Carolyn Graham, Kathy Moore, and Darlyne Setterlund who enjoy the challenge of reading and discussing great literature, also cultivate the art of listening as members of the Great Books Group.

The club is a non-profit educational organization with the sole purpose of the foundation to provide people of all ages with a lifelong program of liberal self-education through the reading and discussion of books. At present, the foundation has two major national programs: the adult program, numbering 55,000 participants in 4,000 groups and the Junior Program, consisting of 65,000 youngsters in 4,500 groups.

Financial support of the Foundation comes from the sale of its paperback sets of books. This income meets 80 percent of the annual operating cost with the balance being made up by voluntary gifts from members of Great Books groups, interested individuals outside the program and philanthropic foundations.

The Junior Great Books Discussion Program is designed for youngsters from the lower elementary school grades through senior high school. Readings have been published for exclusive use in the Junior Great Books Program. A brochure describing the Junior Great Books Program and listing the readings is available upon request.

Further information on the adult discussion book club may be obtained by calling 846-4904.

Singles club

The Tri-Valley Singles Club will dance to music by the quartet Daybreak at the Sun-ol Country Club Friday, Nov. 7.

Members and prospective members of the organization of unmarried adults over 21 years of age are welcome to the 8 p.m. event.

For more information contact Al at 443-7612 or Mike at 443-0500.

Off the wall

Doctor Harry and Mr. Hyde

Dave Weber

Dr. Harry Edwards, PhD. (Cornell), is the news media's Frankenstein.

Reporters, diligently recording the words of the pioneer sports activist against deadlines, have quoted Edwards in a simple, no-frills manner.

Edwards quickly acquired a wide-spread reputation as a black monster of athletic revolt.

Hadn't he inspired the boycott and black gloves of the 1968 Olympics?

Outrageous.

To ask the average sports fan about Harry Edwards is to invite a frenzied description of John Carlos' upraised fist and Tommie Smith's bowed head on the Mexico City victory stand.

But dealing with Edwards' spellbinding form of soap-box sociology in a superficial manner can do nothing more than intensify the revolutionary aura; it cannot help in the comprehension of his complex theories of the relationship of society and sport.

Edwards' proper element is the classroom.

His classes at the University of California have been among the most popular on the Berkeley campus. Taking his show on the road, Edwards spoke at a recent Diablo Valley College symposium on violence.

A towering figure at 6-8, Edwards, attired in a red leisure jacket, blue turtleneck and dusty boots, began the prepared portion of his lecture (entitled "Attack on the Astroturf" by a DVC instructor with a flair for the dramatic) by citing recent incidents of violence in major sports.

The armed camp atmosphere of last season's NBA play-offs, increasing hockey violence and South American soccer riots are all the outgrowth of problems within society, he believes.

"Sports through the ages have always reflected the accepted blueprints for life in a given society," he said. "A shared value context leads to the popularity of sports."

Now, says Edwards, the ingrained emphasis in the United States on character, competition, fitness, alertness, religion, patriotism and discipline is no longer valid.

"The blueprints, geared to the needs of white males, don't fit the realities," he said, citing examples from his athletic career at San Jose State.

"Neanderthal coaches have always thought of long hair as being synonymous with the Telegraph Ave. rabble," he began. "Blacks with naturals, even those who wouldn't throw a brick in a race riot, were tagged as 'radicals' while I'm showing character by shaving my head; basically because I couldn't grow any hair," he said, patting his balding head.

"Religiosity," continued Edwards, "was another thing. Before each game we'd kneel down and pray that we'd beat the hell out of the degenerates from across town. But it wasn't good enough just to pray. You had to be an All-American religious freak. Being a Moslem or having your own private beliefs wasn't good enough."

Edwards then lashed into television sports commentators as tools for the reinforcement of the established system.

"What the hell is Frank Gifford for?" he asked, reflecting the views of numerous Monday Night Football watchers. "Anyone who watches the game can tell what's going on, the announcers are there to hammer home the accepted values."

Edwards cited the heroic figure of an injured player who goes on as an example.

"Jim Plunkett's out there playing with a surgically implanted pin in his shoulder and Joe Namath doesn't have knee caps. He's literally running around on sticks. This is interpreted as courage."

"Anyone else who went around running into trucks or something with a pin in his shoulder would be a damn fool, but in football it shows courage," he said.

He also took on the Monday Night crew for zeroing in on Chicago linebacker Wally Chambers during a recent telecast.

"Chambers is one of the few ballplayers the Bears had on the field, yet all they talked about was the fact that he was wearing an earring."

"He was out there breaking backs and crushing skulls as well as anyone, but they kept equating him with other things men with earrings represent," Edwards recalled.

The upsurge of violence on America's playing fields is a result of the crumbling value system he continued.

"The last thing a worker, striving to make it, wants to admit is that the system is no longer vital," Edwards said, "so rather than embrace an opposing ideology, he stays with traditional outlets, such as sports, but seeks violence within that framework."

The owners in turn provide the fans with institutionalized violence in order to get them through the turnstiles, he elaborated, citing the addition of 350 more guards at New England Patriot games as evidence.

Society's basic blueprints must be changed, says Edwards, or the violence on the field, which has already spread to the stands will go to the streets, particularly in economically depressed areas such as New York City.

With masses of white males joining the group for whom the value system no longer works, Edwards had a warning about the future of international competition.

"I said before the 1972 Olympics that they would make '68 look like a Boy Scout campout and I was right. Well, '76 will make Munich look like a church picnic," he said, adding, "Otherwise why would Canada pull its peace-keeping force from Cyprus to guard the so-called 'brotherhood and rivalry' at Montreal?"

It is almost impossible for the typical suburbanite to stomach all the pronouncements Edwards makes during his speeches; peppered as they are by words of his own making: "religiosity," "freakishness and weirdery," et al.

But he has spotted the coming trends and is trying to deal with them, while many of his detractors refuse to acknowledge inevitable changes.

That, if nothing else, makes Harry Edwards worth listening to.

Moby Vike dogging Chabot

Suddenly an old nemesis is haunting Chabot College dreams of a Golden Gate Conference football championship.

The Gladiators, who took another step in the direction of a title with a 14-11 win over City College of San Francisco Saturday night in Hayward, are being hounded by long-time rival Diablo Valley.

The Vikings, who lost their opening three conference games, moved into second place, one-half game behind the Gladiators, following a 34-13 whipping of West Valley. DVC quarterback Gary Graumann threw five touchdown passes in that contest.

With the season reaching the critical stage, Chabot is 4-1, and Diablo, 3-1-1. West Valley and DeAnza follow at 4-2 and 3-2 respectively.

Chabot will take this weekend off, which means DVC can tie for first place if it wins against DeAnza.

For the first half of the GGC season, it never seemed plausible that the Vikings could challenge Chabot, especially after the Gladiators whipped DVC in Pleasant Hill. But behind Graumann, they've come back.

"I'm just glad we got them out of the way," said Chabot coach Terry Cagaanan yesterday. "We caught them at an early time, and they had difficulties with injuries and such. But they've settled down now. We felt they'd be a tough team, and I know they're coaches were saying it would be their best team in years."

"We've got to win both our final games," Cagaanan said, "otherwise DVC could slip in there a half-game ahead of us."

"Our kids are conscious of that," said Cagaanan. "In the locker room Saturday night they were saying that it didn't matter what the other teams did. They know they've got to win the rest."

The Gladiators defeated stubborn CCSF on a thrilling fourth quarter comeback. Trailing, 9-7, quarterback Chuck Stevenson hit one of the state's leading receivers, Tom Ferguson, with a 17-yard touchdown pass to win it. The play was a super effort by Ferguson who caught eight passes during the game for 100 yards.

"Fergie made the play," Cagaanan praised. "It was going to be picked off, but just prior to that, he tipped the ball in the air. Then he jumped up again and caught it and ran in. It was one of the most accurate plays we've seen this season."

Stevenson suffered an off night against San Francisco's rugged defense, completing just nine passes. Running back Robert Bruce carried the load with 155 rushing yards. It was his second straight 100-plus game for the Gladiators. "He was in a slump in the middle of the season," Cagaanan said, "but his intensity has picked up lately. He's getting into the seam and he's really running hard now."

Bruce was Chabot's outstanding offensive player as chosen by the coaching staff. Linemen Dave Shaw and Dave Reno earned the defensive award.

The Gladiator defense has been outstanding in the last month, holding opponents to 18 points over the previous four games.

It took another strong effort to swat down the Rams, who have won just once in the GGC.

"This is the third year in a row we've beaten them in the fourth quarter," said Cagaanan, not displeased with the closeness of the score. "We knew they'd be tough, and we were anxious to play them. Our kids played hard, but they didn't play as well offensively. We stayed disciplined, though, and we overcame our mistakes."

Injured running back Curtis Bledsoe sat out the CCSF game, but will return in two weeks when Chabot faces College of San Mateo on the road.

The Gladiators will spend this off week healing some minor bumps and bruises, Cagaanan said, and refining some details of the offensive game. "There'll be no let up," he said. "We'll hard this week."

The newest sports craze for kids (skateboarders might argue) is bicycle motocross. Equipped with knobbed tires and heavy-duty frames, young daredevils blaze over rolling cross country courses, risking skinned elbows and raw rears. Livermore held its third bicy-

Soaring cle-cross last weekend at Robert Livermore Park. Overall winner Scott Hanson jockeyed his machine sideways to negotiate this jump. Two unidentified riders zipped over a crest.

TV keeps Cup, 5-0

Tri-Valley Soccer Club won the Livermore Challenge Cup soccer match for the third consecutive year last Sunday, defeating Dublin, 5-0.

Four teams competed in the event at Robertson Park Stadium, with Tri-Valley toppling Diablo Valley in the opener, 2-1. Dublin defeated Pleasanton United, 2-1, in another first round game.

Tri-Valley's championship victory was led by Rich Timmons who scored both goals in the first half against Dublin. One was a penalty kick.

Ed Garcia, Mike Lavell and Steve Thomas all scored after intermission. Myron Hord had one assist.

Timmons and Steve Thomas scored in the opening game win over Diablo. Assistants went to Garcia and Hary Noel.

Dublin was led by fine play from Ken Davis, Frank Davis and Marty Adamson.

Mats rise to 13th in poll

Three teams are in line for the EBAL football championship this season, and according to the East Bay's high school poll, Granada should carry the most strength into the final two weeks of play.

The Matadors are ranked 13th this week following a 27-13 victory over San Ramon last Saturday. Granada finished just one point behind Harry Ells in the latest voting of the East Bay Prep Writers Association.

Mission San Jose is the unanimous choice as the number one team in the area. No other EBAL teams are listed in the top 15, though Amador Valley and Livermore, the other title challengers, received honorable mention.

Granada and Amador, both 3-0 in conference games, meet Friday in Pleasanton to snap the logjam atop the standings. Livermore, 2-1, will play in Danville winless San Ramon.

The Cowboys have been defeated by Amador already this season. Thus, to have an opportunity for the league crown, and the post season playoff berth it earns, they must hope for an Amador loss this week, then defeat Granada on the final week of the season.

Granada has won six games in a row following an opening day shutout loss to Arroyo. Amador is working on a three game win streak.

If there are going to be people who do not like "A Little Night Music" the Stephen Sondheim musical now being presented by the Diablo Light Opera Company in Walnut Creek, this will not deter me from recommending the production as one of the most stylish, beautiful, elegant and pleasant shows I have ever seen in the Contra Costa metropolis. It is lovely to see and a delight to listen to the eerie wonder of the Sondheim music and lyrics.

What makes "A Little Night Music" so special is that there is scarcely a trace of non-professional theatre in the entire evening. Almost everyone is in fine voice and the entire cast seems to be enjoying themselves. This attitude is infectious and it requires considerable restraint for the 'with-it' observer to keep from toe-tapping and vocalizing with those on stage.

Instead of tagging all the backstage credits onto the end of these comments, I'm going to give proper praise here and now to superior word of Director David Wheeler and Choreographer Donald Eryck who move a large cast about with consummate grace. Also, a special bouquet to Set Designer Tom Langguth for creating a fanciful 'dream' world that was beautifully incorporated into the total production. Changes moved so swiftly and smoothly we were transported from area to area with a minimum of fuss and bother. In comments about the staging, Scott Denison must be applauded for his lighting design which was gentle, lovely and entirely appropriate to all occasions. This is also true of the costumes designed by Charlotte Meyer. The entire evening was an elegant 'fin-de-siecle' fashion show. Every new gown brought a gasp of appreciation from the ladies about me. If the show didn't have a big budget, Charlotte Meyer is to be especially congratulated. It looked like the proverbial million bucks.

SETTING THE SCENE

Now for a moment about the music. Whether it be a little morning, noon or nighttime song, everyone should be on their feet for Michael Biagi who did a magnificent job conducting a superior orchestra and leading the cast through the intricacies of the score.

Everyone involved should be particularly aware they are in the presence of a great musical talent. From out front you have the feeling every movement of the agile baton has a very special meaning and that Biagi is in total control of the scene from opening phrase to closing chord. The crispness of his direction creates a fine tension. Everyone responds to it, musicians, cast and audience.

Sondheim, as a composer, never had it so good. Biagi understands every nuance of the music as written, but like a great actor with a superior script, there is the plus quality he gives to creative interpretation. Biagi provides much more than is inherent in the score. Diablo Light Opera should be properly appreciative of his efforts while he's still available to this area. Michael Biagi is destined for important status in the world of music and musical theatre. Remember, you read it first here.

It will be difficult to point out anyone who wasn't 'right' on stage. "A Little Night Music" was a well cast show. The quintet; Charles Lindemann, Antoinette Catrow, Darlene Appell, Kenneth Wohn and Joyce Lovett, who 'interpolate' the plot like a lyric Greek Chorus, are an effective ensemble transporting the viewer from scene to scene. Janet Soder was an impressive Madame Armfeldt; Brett Moore a properly repressed son madly in love with his step-mother — a vision of delightful innocence (Mary Lou Meaden) and cowed by a romantically errant father (Ken Grantham).

Susan Madley, as Petra, was the personification of a fun-loving, unbridled servant girl. Her big moment in song, "The Miller's Son" has show-stopping potential except for the fact it is counterpoint to "Send In The Clowns" the musical and dramatic climax of the show.

Ruth Anne Green, as Desiree Armfeldt, if placed in direct competition with Glynis Johns or Jean Simmons would come out the gold medal winner. She knows exactly what she's doing and IS Desiree. After a bow to the song, which is only great, I'd say her aforementioned "Send In The Clowns" could melt the heart of any insensitive soul.

Jay Paul Hornbacher and Alma Sayles, as the Count and Countess Malcolm, were a great pair. Hornbacher was strong enough to rise above an unfortunate choice of uniform for his initial appearance. Sayles has no such problem. Together they manage to be totally irreverent about gossip, marriage and other social amenities. I'll guarantee you'll love them. Also, congratulations are in order to everyone else for their solid work.

One word of warning. To really enjoy the show you'll have to sharpen your hearing. In addition to Sondheim's music, you'll be exposed to his great lyrics which are so full of the plot line you'll miss a lot if you're not listening. The book is by Hugh Wheeler suggested by a movie by Ingmar Bergman. The whole thing adds up to a grand evening of musical theatre and Diablo Light Opera is to be congratulated for bringing it off in such high style.

Cooper, UAW sued for campaign expenses

Leshner News Bureau
SAN MATEO — Elmer Cooper, Bay Area Rapid Transit director, and the United Auto Workers' Union have been sued for nonpayment of Cooper's campaign printing expenses.

UAW Local 560 in Milpitas figures in the suit because it apparently allowed Cooper to mail more than 100,000 brochures to San Francisco voters using the UAW nonprofit organization bulk mailing permit, thus saving Cooper about $5,000, the suit alleges.

The union has since been made to pay the difference between the regular bulk mail rate and the nonprofit rate after postal inspectors in Washington, D.C., discovered the irregularity, Leshner L. Newspapers has learned.

Admail-Express, a Burlingame printing firm, filed the suit Oct. 29 in Central Municipal Court, San Mateo County, alleging Cooper and the UAW Local have refused to pay $2,712 of a $3,212 bill for printing and mailing campaign literature in 1974.

Milpitas Postmaster Walter Everly refused to comment on the union's use of its bulk mail permit for a political candidate in a district two counties away.

Everly said he wouldn't talk without an okay from the UAW.

"I have no comment. I don't have the time today. If you want to come down and see me, fine," he said from his office.

But Everly's superior, San Jose Postmaster William

Lawrence, was a bit more talkative and managed to elicit the information from Milpitas.

Lawrence acknowledged that there "were some discrepancies in mailings" by the UAW.

The union, he said, did pay the Postal Service nearly $5,000.

Lawrence also explained that misuse of bulk rate permits occurs often and the violators are made to pay the difference.

UAW officials could not be reached for comment on the misuse of the bulk mail permit and why Cooper was allowed to use it.

Documents attached to the Admail-Express suit show that the firm sent 117,358

Cooper campaign brochures — all allegedly mailed with the help of UAW Local 560 at an estimated postal savings of 4.3 cents per piece of mail.

The first mailing included 36,028 BART campaign brochures to San Francisco's Sunset District and another 72,823 to the rest of Cooper's San Francisco BART district.

In a second mailing, the documents show that a "Republican letter" was sent to 2,814 people.

BART directors face grand jury investigation

Leshner News Bureau
MARTINEZ — Expense accounts of Bay Area Rapid Transit Directors will be investigated by the Contra Costa County Grand Jury.

Peter Felice, Grand Jury foreman, said the investigation is being undertaken "in response to recent inquiries."

An investigation by Leshner Newspapers has shown that BART board president Richard Clark and vice president Elmer Cooper billed the district for $23,000 in expenses above their stipend for the job.

Both men contend there is nothing out of line with the expenses.

Cooper, though, billed BART for a trip to Europe to attend a transit convention and then journeyed to other European countries at BART expense where he claims to have viewed other transit systems.

In addition, the series by investigative reporter Justin Roberts noted that Cooper had billed the district for $17,277 during a seven month period.

Cooper also billed BART

for secretarial and telephone costs, plus a number of meals at Bay Area restaurants, the series said.

The series contended Cooper had billed BART more than once for some items, although the director denies that.

Clark, who approves all directors' expenses, totaled up expenses of $6,343 for the first seven months of the year.

The series said that Clark billed BART for secretarial, telephone and other office expenses available to directors at BART headquarters.

Frankenstein's finances?

Valley Bank Prexy D.B. Kollwe (bottom left) found himself surrounded by an odd bevy of feminine pulchritude when his Livermore ranch staff reported for work last Friday. All the lovely ladies got into the Halloween spirit and arrived as assorted ghosts, goblins, and you-name-it. There were more wild costumes and make up than one lonely photographer could manage. The representative group above, however, will give you some idea of the "scary" atmosphere around Valley Bank-Livermore on trick 'n' trick day. The Frankenstein Monster or Dracula's daughter could have made a financial transaction without being noticed. One thing you'll have to admit, though, there are a lot of happy smiles involved.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Some luck in duplicate play

(a bid not recommended by either us or any other writers) or after a jump rebid in notrump (again not recommended but not really a bad call) your score would depend on the opening lead.

A prosaic fourth-best diamond lead against notrump would hold declarer to seven tricks; against any other suit lead he would make at least three notrump and might well make four or five for a really good, but rather undeserved score.

All in all, this hand shows that there is plenty of luck in duplicate bridge.

Ask the Jacobys

A Texas reader wants to know why all bridge columnists are prejudiced against East and West and in favor of North and South.

It is a sort of unwritten law. In order to make it easy for studious readers to follow the play, the bottom hand is always declarer. Since it is easier to write about winning hands than losing hands the majority of the cards go to the declaring side.

If you played in the spring charity game, got to five clubs and made it, you should have the warm feeling of having bid and played this hand very well. If you bid six clubs and went down, you could always complain that you would have made it if the club finesse had worked.

If you bid three notrump either after an opening notrump with 17 high-card points and a six-card club suit

District elections

CC expects light vote

Lesher News Bureau
MARTINEZ—Only about 20 per cent of eligible voters are expected to go to the polls in special district elections throughout the county tomorrow.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the districts and divisions where there are elections.

The largest will be in the Central Sanitary District, which has 93,944 voters and covers the area including Martinez, Pleasant Hill, Walnut Creek, Lafayette, Orinda, Moraga, Alamo and Danville. Next is the Contra Costa Water District with elections for directors representing Division 4, portions of Concord and Western Pittsburg, and Division 5, Eastern Pittsburg and Antioch.

County Elections Superintendent Lon Underwood said about 180,000 of the county's 234,000 voters live in districts which are holding elections.

In other districts, no elections are being held because the number of candidates equaled the number of seats available, so the expense of actually holding elections was avoided.

The ballots include one in the Tice Valley-Rooms Moor area to form Library Service Area 14 for the purpose of building a new branch library building. The measure sets a maximum property tax rate of 25 cents per $100 assessed value to pay off construction bonds.

In the Central Sanitary District, the three incumbents are being challenged by Peter Knoedler, president of an electronics company and resident of Diablo, Robert A. Falco, an attorney from Walnut Creek, and Nels E. Carlson Jr., business executive from Moraga.

The incumbents are Parke L. Boneysteele of Lafayette, Charles J. Gibbs of Orinda and Don L. Allan of Martinez. Election is by the district at large.

In Division 4 of the Contra

Costa Water District, appointed incumbent Bette Boatman of Concord faces two opponents, R. M. Hoffman, a telephone company employee from Pittsburg, and Jaime Dolojan, an accountant for the city of Pittsburg.

In Division 5, veteran director Claude Stitt of Antioch is opposed by Martin Tillman, retired superintendent of the Antioch water treatment plant.

Elections are also being held in the Danville, San Ramon, and Rodeo Fire Protection Districts, Valley and Diablo Community Service Districts, Bethel Island Municipal Improvement District, Oakley, Rodeo, San Pablo and Stege Sanitary Districts, and the East Contra Costa Irrigation District's Division 3.

and Owner Dick West. The company sells and services high quality sewing machines, and is located at 7387 Amador Valley Blvd. in Dublin.

Police say Battles battled

LIVERMORE—Police officers responding to complaints of a loud party on Meadowlark St. Saturday night were met in front of the house by a man who grabbed both officers and wrestled with them for several minutes before being restrained by back-up police.

Alan Keith Battles, 25, of 419 Meadowlark was arrested and held on investigation of charges of felony assault on police officers. He was later released on $6,000 bail.

Police said Officer Donn Jeffery Neher and Reserve Officer William Edward Larson approached Battles, who was standing in front of the house. After Battles denied he lived there, police walked around him to ring the doorbell.

Battles reportedly grabbed both policemen by the shoulders and pushed them into the sidewalk. A scuffle ensued, in which Neher's face was bloodied from punches and scratches.

After being restrained by a third officer, Battles allegedly bit Neher's index finger causing extreme pain, and then kicked Neher in the groin while being placed in the patrol car.

Neher was treated and released at Valley Memorial Hospital.

A booby-trapped banana

A 1½" finishing nail stuck through a yellow wrapped banana nougat was the only incident of booby-trapped candy reported to police in the valley after Halloween.

Young Richard Rosette of Pleasanton trick-or-treated on Hillsdale, Stonedale, Maywood, Springdale, North Muirwood, Muirwood Court, Hillview and Highland Oaks. While sorting through his booty, he discovered the candy with the nail imbedded in it.

Several incidents of cars and house splattered with eggs, especially in Pleasanton, were the only other reports of Halloween-induced crime, police said.

Both Livermore and Pleasanton Police Depts. said this year's Halloween was quiet—"one of the quietest I've ever seen," said a Livermore Police Dept. spokesman.

Hutmacher promoted

Kenneth Hutmacher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Hutmacher of 9755 Gorham Place in San Ramon, has achieved the rank of sergeant in the U.S. Air Force.

A 1972 graduate of Dublin High School, the sergeant attended Diablo Valley Junior College.
